Cost regulations

Version of January 1, 2024

GENERAL

Pursuant to Art. 16 of the regulations for the pension account 3a, the Board of Trustees hereby issues the following cost regulations:

1 Operation of pension coverage (basic services)

The basic services pertaining to the operation of pension coverage comprise:

- Account opening
- Preparing and sending account statements
- Retirement benefits payments
- Allocation and transfer of retirement assets in the case of divorce
- Cash payment of pension benefits
- Transfer of pension benefits to a new pension benefits institution 3a
- Calculation, notification and collection of taxes
- Information provided by phone or in writing
- Pledges

The costs of the basic services are carried:

- by the bank at which the pension account is held. The bank can take account of the costs in setting the interest rate for the pension account;
- by the insured person through the charging of costs to the pension account;
- from the bank, with cost contribution from the insured person.

The contracted bank must notify the foundation in writing of the introduction or modification of the cost contribution by the end of September at the latest in respect of the following year. The foundation shall inform the insured persons affected by the operating costs in the end-of-year documents.

Appendix 1 governs the details.

2 Additional services

If the insured person opts to invest in securities saving, the foundation will, in addition to charging for the costs of basic services, also charge fees for advisory services and for administration of the securities. These may be covered by compensation from the investment products (cf. appendix 2a) or by a fee charged to the pension account (cf. appendix 2b).

For processing advance withdrawals for the promotion of homeownership (WEF) the foundation will, in addition to charging for the costs of basic services, also levy a fee of CHF 100 which is charged to the pension account.

3 Sufficient account balance

If the balance of the vested benefits is negative following deduction of the charges, the foundation may, if it deems it appropriate, arrange for the sale of securities to cover the negative amount. In doing so, the foundation will always sell securities with a value of at least CHF 200.

If the insured person's investment in securities saving is insufficient, the pension account will be closed.

4 Changes to the regulations

The Board of Trustees can adjust these cost regulations at any time.

5 Entry into force

These cost regulations enter into force on January 1, 2024 and replace the cost regulations of July 1, 2023.

Coverage of costs by the cooperation partner managing the account

No operational costs (basic services) are charged to the insured person for investing in the pension account. Operational costs will be reimbursed to the foundation by the cooperation partner managing the account in accordance with a separate agreement.

Coverage of costs by the insured person

Operating costs (basic services) are deducted from the pension account on investing in the pension account. The operating costs amount to CHF 10 per calendar quarter. No costs are charged for fractions of calendar quarters.

Coverage of costs by the cooperation partner with cost contribution by the insured person

Operating costs (basic services) are partly deducted from the pension account on investing in the pension account. The contribution is charged per calendar quarter. No operating costs are charged for fractions of calendar quarters.

Appendix 2a to the cost regulations: Administration of securities involving compensation

For investments in the investment groups and funds listed below, the foundation or the cooperation partner receives compensation to cover the advisory and administrative costs. This compensation may not exceed 1,0 % p.a. of the invested assets. The foundation or the cooperation partner may retain this compensation or pass it on to its mandataries. The annual financial statements show the compensation the foundation received from third parties.
